Question 4

X was a Calcutta based English weekly started in 1905 by Indian nationalist leader Bipin Chandra Pal and edited by Sri Aurobindo. Another publication sharing the same name was started four years later by the Paris Indian Society under the aegis of Madam Bhikaji Cama. Both of these had the same aim of inciting nationalist feelings among people in India and those abroad to unite against the oppressive British rule. The name X is, in fact, a colloquialism of one of a well-known phrase in context of Indian Freedom Struggle.

Identify X.
